FOR THE FIRST time our Yearbook has an identity, an individual characteristic name of its own. The student body voted to call it the Campus. Nostalgia at the thought that soon the Weymouth High School would have to leave this beautiful red brick building with its expansive lawns and iron gate, so like a college campus, prompted the choice of this name.

Not only is the name different but also the format. A central theme derived from the classs motto, "Knowledge comes, but wisdom lingers" appears throughout the book.

WE DEDICATE

"To rear the tender thought,
To teach the young idea how to shoot,
To pour the fresh instruction o'er the mind,
To breath the enlivening Spirit, and to fix
The generous purpose in the glowing breast."

—Thompson

Expressions of sincere gratitude, either by word or deed are so inadequate that we often leave our greatest debts unpaid. This is particularly true when we try to repay Miss Helen Norris and Mr. William Kearns for what they have sacrificed to promote our interests, while they sought no reward but our progress in learning to think, and our ultimate success.

At this late date, as we reflect upon their painstaking efforts to guide us in the right direction, upon their generous patience with our shortcomings, and upon their inspirational leadership, our helplessness in voicing our most genuine sentiments can be understood.

Therefore, as a slight expression of our warm affection and appreciation, we, the Class of 1959, dedicate this book to Miss Helen Norris and to Mr. William Kearns.

Administration

KNOWLEDGE may be defined as "the body of facts known to a person."

Wisdom is usually understood to mean "the faculty of forming a sound judgment in a matter."

It has been our hope while you were at Weymouth High School that we have enabled you to amass considerable knowledge and to give you the training, experience, and wisdom to use it wisely. We sincerely hope that your years with us have been such that "wisdom will linger" and help you to enjoy a full and happy life.

Best wishes to each and every graduate.

Sincerely,

WALLACE L. WHITTLE

LATIN AMERICA: Continent of the Future

WILLIAM EVERETT LEWIS

Careful analysis reveals that Latin America is the fastest growing continent in the world, both economically and socially; consequently, it is expected that in the future she will play an increasingly more important role in world affairs. There is a bright future in the offing for our southern neighbors provided they take advantage of the opportunity by overcoming the obstacles hindering their advancement.

One obstacle that has greatly hindered the progress of Latin America is the political structure; for, although we hear the continent referred to as a unit, in reality, it consists of several politically divided nations. Some of these nations are democcratic in nature, but others are dicatorial and have developed into areas which might readily accept Communism.

Latin America is greatly in need of economic assistance and, if she does not receive aid from the United States, she will turn elsewhere. The relationship between our country and Latin America seems to be in a rather precarious situation at this time, but one that can be remedied. Such projects as the Organization of American States, comprising Latin America and the United States, which held its tenth Inter-American conference in March, 1954, foster co-operation between the American nations and encourage mutual economic assistance. It is hoped that by the actions of that agency and by the work of United States programs, the threat of Communism hindering the democratic development of Latin America will be removed.

Why does Latin America have such a great need of foreign aid? At present she is striving to develop her abundant natural resources, which make up the greater part of her exports. In recent years commerce has made rapid advances. Since the period immediately preceding World War II, trade between Latin America and the United States has doubled. The bulk of her exports still remains in the form of raw materials, upon which our country is becoming increasingly more dependent; therefore, it is of great importance to us that Latin American resources be developed.

The United States feels that Latin American economy will best advance through free enterprise and private capital. Milton Eisenhower, Personal Representative of the President, points out that eighty per cent of the economic aid which Latin America has received from the United States is in the form of private capital.

Latin America, however, feels that she should receive more help in the form of investment from the United States government. As a result she does not always present an attitude favorable to private investment. Clearly some sort of harmony between North American and South American views could greatly accelerate her program of economic development.

Socially, Latin America is far behind the United States, although her standard of living is improving rapidly. Since educational facilities are not adequate, many nations are still burdened with over fifty per cent illiteracy. These rates are, however, being lowered. Bolivia, which provides free and compulsory primary education and has seven universities, has already reduced her adult illiteracy rate from eighty-five per cent in 1956 to sixty-eight per cent in 1958. Many other states have also initiated various social and educational reforms with the result that, on the whole, the standard of living in Latin America is increasing faster than in any other area of the world.

The future holds much promise for Latin America, an area which has both the natural resources and the manpower to become a leading power in the world.

Before she can achieve this goal, however, she must solve her political differences, both among her own disunited nations and with the United States. Once this ambition is realized, economic and social growth will follow naturally and she will assume her rightful place among the powers of the world.

In the words of Arturo Frondizi, President of Argentina, "Let us make the American Continent the continent of human hope, realizing on its soil and for all its sons the promise of happiness and fulfillment America offers to mankind."

THE AMERICAS . . . Partners for Peace

DONNA ELINOR PETERSON

TODAY A MINORITY subversive group in Latin American countries is spreading rumors, indicating that our Southern neighbors are developing a dislike and, in some cases, even a distrust of the United States. Instances of ill-feeling were evident in the fairly recent reports concerning the stoning of Vice President Nixon in Venezuela and the student demonstration in Bolivia, both of which were eagerly seized upon by propagandists. Actually, study has shown that some basis of fact did exist in these accounts; but, on the whole, the rumors were exaggerated.

The present unfriendly attitude of Latin American republics is the result of corruptive outside influences regarding the past foreign policy of the United States, a policy often interpreted as being devised to benefit our country at the expense of the weaker, the less stable nations. There rests the beginning of the bitterness, which has been spreading, nurtured by misunderstanding and error.

This misunderstanding has been gradually developing since the inception of our Latin American policy, in 1823, with the adoption of the Monroe Doctrine, a political theory that supposedly was "America for Americans." Thence, the United States became the protector of the young Latin American nations, independent but exhausted by struggles against autocratic rule.

At the time, the Western Hemisphere, isolated from the rest of the world geographically, could also expect to remain isolated politically, with little difficulty. As a result, this policy was fairly workable and culminated in the growth of a mutual, but rather distant friendship, based on a common need for individual advancement. This might be exemplified by the action of the United States in the Mexican revolution and in the Venezuelan boundary dispute when those Latin American countries looked to us for aid.

As the years have passed, however, the purpose behind our actions has become questionable in the minds of many Latin Americans. The policy established by Theodore Roosevelt, in 1904, transforming the position of the United States from a protector to a police agent, gave substance to this doubt. For the next thirty years, our country intervened in numerous instances to prevent political and economic disturbances. Fearing action by European creditors, we rescued Santo Domingo from bankruptcy; United States Marines took Veracruz, Mexico, to bring order during a political upheaval, but only in the best interests of democracy. Too, we occupied Haiti to salvage the financial system and to establish a stable government. As a result of such intervention, friendly in our eyes but aggressive in the eyes of Latin Americans, the United States came to be regarded as "The Great Colossus of the North," the "Neighbor with the Big Stick." Amiable relations could hardly exist under such conditions. Nevertheless, United States has aided in the development of these Southern republics, politically and financially. The points debatable in the minds of our Southern neighbors were the methods employed and our motivations which frequently aroused their suspicions.

This attitude warned President Franklin D. Roosevelt of the necessity of proving otherwise, so, in 1933, he introduced the "Good Neighbor Policy"; stating that this country was to devote its energies to "the policy of the good neighbor — the neighbor who resolutely respects himself and, because he does so, respects the rights of others."

Under the terms of this policy, all countries of the Western Hemisphere were to be equal, equal in authority and in points of decision. To bring about this sense of equality, the United States was to evidence respect and co-operation and, although maintaining firmness, avoid a domineering attitude.

Likewise, a series of Pan-American conferences have been held to determine decision involving international affairs, through discussion and co-operative actions of both the South America countries and the United States; for example, the Pan-American League of twenty-one nations caused a unified front to be followed by these countries in World War II.

After the war, the Rockefeller Committee was set up to co-ordinate the cultural and commercial relations among the American republics. The multiple accomplishments through its efforts have been prodigious: student transfers; training programs for medical personnel, social workers, engineers and aviators; and a well-developed transportation system by highways and airlines between the two continents.

With such a concentrated effort on the part of the United States to repair North and South America relations, much progress has been made, but the way is not easy. Old problems are yet to be solved. New difficulties are arising in the current world situation. We have the means, however, to overcome all obstacles in the path to an understanding. With the republics of Latin America and the United States working co-operatively, we can accomplish much, not only for ourselves but the entire world.

Latin America and the United States can be an active force — American "partners in hope for world peace."

THE AMERICAS . . . Economic Partners

BRUCE WESLEY STEVENS

During the great era of free trade and investment in the ninteenth century, the United States enjoyed a favorable program of commercial relations with Latin America, which ended abruptly in the crash of 1929. Then Latin American industry become revitalized during World War II when she offered an unrestricted field of exports to the Western Allies; since then, there has been a continuous advancement noted in her business organization.

The time has come when the United States must consider seriously the great importance of Latin America, not only as a market but also as a main source of essential raw materials.

No land is more conductive to American business than Latin America which, next to Canada, absorbs more U.S. capital than any other part of the World. By the end of 1957, our direct private investment in Latin America amounted to 8.4 billion dollars or one-third of our total direct investment abroad. Likewise, our government has invested at least two billion dollars, and the Export-Import Bank has loaned them over a quarter of a billion. A good amount of this rapidly growing investment has been directed to oil, mining, and public utilities in Venezuela, Brazil, Cuba, Chile, and Mexico. Latin America now accounts for one-fourth of our world trade, United States business having been established in practically every market.

Furthermore, many of our corporations have established branches to meet Latin America's demands for more manufactured products — demands that have resulted from their economic growth, fostered by our help. Besides this very important reason, there are several others:

1. The differences between tastes frequently require a new product or the adaptation of the old.

2. Raw materials are easily obtained in large quantities, thanks to the combined efforts of many countries in exploitation and research.

3. The sources of raw materials, such as oil, are not endangered by possible major conflicts now existing in the Middle East.

Most of the Latin American countries have reached a critical point in their development. Though still dependent on their exports or raw materials to the United States and Europe, they desire internal growth to make them less dependent on the fluctuation of commodity prices in world markets and to give them a greater sense of self-sufficiency. It was remarked by a Brazilian official: "There is a sense of frustration in our people when they hear about the great wealth of Brazil. We had a gold rush in the eighteenth century; the Portuguese ended with little, but we ended with nothing. Now there is a growing feeling that progress must come from within." Indeed, Latin Americans have awakened to their responsibilities and are making great strides toward economic security.

In the past few years progress has been noted again and again: seven republics have integrated steel industries; Argentina has a small automobile industry and the beginning of an important parts supply business; Brazil's automobile industry is turning out over 100,000 buses, cars and trucks a year; Chile is utilizing her forests for her new pulp-and-paper industry; and Mexico's Sahagun Indians, who only ten years ago were farmers, are now turning out diesels, textile machines, and freight cars. Such an industrial expansion has given the main impetus to Latin American growth and has boosted personal income and expenditures.

The combination of our help and their ambition has transformed economies that were dependent on agricultural and foreign industries into more stable economies. Despite the fact that the countries of Latin America are divided, the hope for the future is strong. Observes Carl Rieser: "If this area teems with problems — poverty, inflation, trade disbalances, nationalism, and Communist subversion, it also teems with excitement. The challenge to United States policy-makers is to help Latin American nations overcome these problems and at the same time encourage them in their legitimate aspirations."

HUMOR

"Unthinking, idle, wild, and young, I laugh'd and danc'd and talk'd and sung." — Princess Amelia

We remember . . .

Coming together in these halls from several schools,
Meeting new friends and losing ourselves in its vastness,
Watching the football games, inspired with loyalty;
Attending the Victory Dance and other get-togethers,
Taking leave of school for the Christmas vacation,
Cheering for the basketball, track, and hockey teams;
Realizing an integral feeling now instilled in us,
Laughing and finding new friends—our Sophomore Party,
Dashing into the water, basking in the sun—our outing;
Returning from vacation, ready to start another year;
Combining sports and socials with our studies,
Enjoying again the Victory Dance and Junior Party,
Feeling cheerful at the outing, then leaving for vacation;
Conceiving the great importance of our last year,
Desiring everything to be the very best,
Thanking God, our parents, our teachers for these happy years.
Encouraging our teams as they played for the last time,
Building deeper friendships to be counted on tomorrow,
Preparing ourselves for our respective future goals,
Planning our daily lives and acquiring knowledge,
Thanking God, our parents, our teachers for these happy years.

EDUCATION

"From contemplation one may become wise, but knowledge comes only from study." — A. Edward Newton

BEGINNING OF THE DAY

We arise, bright-eyed ready to face another day.

First stop is the home room,

THE BUSES UNLOAD. Some students rush in to finish homework; some linger to chat or joke. The bell rings. A general hubbub ensues as everyone rushes, bumping elbows, dropping and recovering notebooks, to his home room seat.

General silence drops heavily as the teacher's "Good Morning" is followed by the announcements, the Bible reading, and the prayer. Then we renew our Pledge of Allegiance to our flag.

and then we slip past the guardians to meet in the corridors.

We roam 'til 8:20

catching up on the latest news

and checking our homework

A few minutes now, time to collect ourselves and our books, and at the sound of the bell everybody is on the move to his first class. There is a friendly, noisy bustle in the corridor. Teachers standing outside their doors nod and smile as we go by. Then the corridors empty like a church after services, and the class rooms fill, papers rustle, books open, glasses are adjusted and the work begins.

8:35 — The stampede begins.

until the attendance slips go down.

Mr. DiSessa checks on accuracy.

"The tangent of forty-five degrees is one."

COLLEGE

THE COLLEGE course at Weymouth High School was planned to give students a solid preparation for college. The usual academic subjects are taught with a view of training pupils to do individual thinking and creative work, as well as to learn basic facts on which to build future knowledge and wisdom.

Always alert to pass on to pupils new ideas for improved education, Weymouth is offering this year a special course in experimental physics prepared by a group of physicists at Massachusetts Institute of Technology. Most of Weymouth High School's serious students are rewarded by being accepted at the college of their choice.

BUSINESS

THERE ARE many excellent opportunities for young people in the business world today. Weymouth High School offers a variety of courses in preparation for this work. Bookkeeping, typing, accounting, and such courses are presented with meticulous attention to accuracy. Moreover, these courses are combined with subjects like history, science and English. The English course includes business English, letter writing, spelling and literature to develop in the students a love and appreciation of the classics.

Any student who works conscientiously in the Weymouth High School business department will have no difficulty in obtaining or holding an interesting and lucrative position as a secretary, typist, or other office employee.

GENERAL

MANY STUDENTS, when they are in high schools, have not yet decided what they would like to do in life. For them the Weymouth High School provides the General Course. The curriculum offers an introduction to several interests, like general science and mathematics. The courses give a broader perspective of the subjects taught, with less attention to working out particular problems.

Such Courses like civics and history give background, and English, all important, includes writing, spelling, and literature.

In this department students prepare for such positions as clerks in stores and telephone operators, or they may use their knowledge as a basis for more particular vocational training.

CREATIVE ARTS

THE CREATIVE ARTS, mechanical drawing, art, and home economics, are very popular at Weymouth High School. Future engineers learn to letter neatly and draw exactly in mechanical drawing classes.

The art course includes water color, oil, charcoal, block printing, and many other media which make it possible for students to acquire many and varied artistic skills.

In home economics classes future seamstresses, cooks, or just plain housewives learn the tricks of their trade. Beautiful garments are created in sewing classes. Delicious meals are prepared in the kitchen; but that is only a part of the food course which also deals with nutrition, dietetics, and budgeting.

AGRICULTURE

Weymouth High School is indeed fortunate to have under its roof a branch of the Norfolk County Agricultural School. This course offers good training in all phases of agriculture. The "Aggie" boys get instruction in care of livestock, plants, trees and shrubs.

Their working year doesn't end in June as does that of the other students in the school. Each boy must take a summer job in a field related to agriculture. Inspectors visit these workers and mark them on their progress. Practical experience added to theoretical knowledge is what makes the Weymouth agricultural students in such great demand for this type of work.

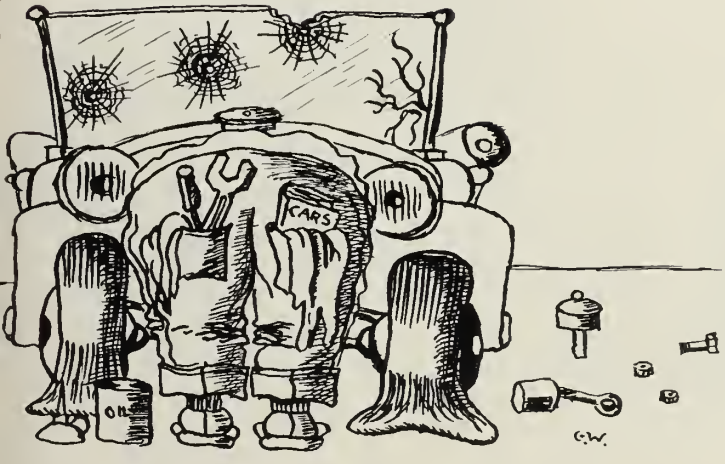
AUTO MECHANICS



THE INTRICACIES of an automobile engine are no mystery to Weymouth High's auto mechanic students. They receive instruction in all phases of automobile repair, including work with the newest automobile designs. The boys get practical experience by reparing the teachers' and students' cars, and seem to satisfy their "customers." Boys trained as auto mechanics at Weymouth High are in demand at any service station that needs a good mechanic.

THE BOYS in the Cabinetmaking shop at Weymouth Vocational School receive excellent first hand experience in the design and construction of furniture. They provide fine furnishings for the home constructed each year by members of the Carpentry Course. Orders ranging from ripple tanks for the Physics Laboratory to cabinets for the teachers are constantly being received. When a boy graduates from the Cabinetmaking course, he is a respected craftsman in his chosen field.

CARPENTRY

EACH YEAR the students in the Carpentry course at Weymouth Vocational School gain a tremendous amount of experience by actually building a house. This outstanding project entails every detail of construction from the pouring of the foundations to the last shingle on the roof. With the skillful guidance of their instructors, the boys learn to transform quantities of lumber and concrete into a beautiful and liveable home. Through this study the students will soon make their contributions to our ever- expanding American economy.

PRINTING

The Print Shop is certainly an important part of the Weymouth school system. While learning the operation of presses, the linotype, the ludlow and many other necessary machines, the boys print a large amount of material for practical use. The printed matter of the Reflector and the Campus are two main projects. Also the apprentice printers supply tickets, posters, programs and schedules for many school activities. With training like this, our boys will make first rate printers.

SHEET METAL

THE SHEET METAL course produces skilled workers for industry. By being instructed in all aspects of the trade, students become experts in sheet metal work. While constructing and installing the heating system for the house that is an important part of the vocational school curriculum, sheet metal students apply the knowledge they have learned in their classrooms and shops. Instruction in soldering, sanding, and the use of new electric tools is included in this course. These boys will be a welcome addition to the industrial development of America.

END OF THE DAY

THE SIXTH PERIOD begins to drag. The teacher has come to the front desk as if to hold closer her class attention. One sly glance at the clock, then another! A soft rustle of collecting papers warns of the scheduled announcements and the dismissal bell.

A few students have to stay to visit with teachers; others remain for extra-curricular activities or sports. Most of the students laughing, chattering, or making dates, spill into the corridors, a boisterous, unrestrained but orderly throng of young Americans. The school day is over.

At long last, quiet.

Oh, why did I talk in English class?

Laughter still rings in the hall.

YEARBOOK

With a larger senior class the staff has had to do a greater amount of writing, checking photographs and names, pasting and planning than in other years. Buried in a mound of paper work were Claire Goldthwaite, Editor-in-Chief; and Susan Allen and John Berg, Assistant Editors. Our talented Art Editor, Susan Wirtz and our dynamic Photographic Editor, Judith Kelley, were a great asset in planning the material and Carol Lee Nelson, our dependable Copy Editor was assisted by Irene DiFelice.

Miss Gilmore, our advisor, was a great source of strength.

JUNIOR MORAL AND SPIRITUAL VALUES COMMITTEE

The Junior Moral and Spiritual Values Committee was formed in 1955 as a special committee of the Student Council. Its primary purpose was to study the lasting values upon which our democracy is based and to bring these values to the attention of the student body.

Among the values considered most important for successful living were reverence, respect, co-operation courage, appreciation, responsibility, faith, kindness, self-discipline, purity and courtesy.

Activities of the committee during the four year period have included assemblies, community projects, Americanism award, signs, library bookmarks, Reflector articles, selection of a prayer for the Yearbook, and most recently, the drafting of a teenage code.

FUTURE NURSES

THE 1958-1959 school year was an active and rewarding one for the Future Nurses.

This year's highlights included visits to local hospitals, instruction with first-aid films, talks by nurses about their profession and a joint panel discussion by Nurse Corps officers from the Army, Navy, and Air Force, regarding Service Nursing for registered nurses. Also, the Norfolk South District Medical Society Auxiliary entertained us at Gordon House in Quincy, and had students escort us through the Quincy City Hospital and through the nurses' home.

The officers this year are Stephanie Elliot, President; Carol Guinette, Vice President; Jane Carmichael, Sophmore Treasurer; Katherine McMorrow, Junior Treasurer.

FUTURE BUSINESS LEADERS

THE OFFICERS for 1958-59 are Patricia Bowman, President; Lawraine Fall and Elizabeth Schauer, Vice-Presidents; Marianne Potts, Secretary; and Diane Blakeman, Treasurer.

Under the direction of Miss Dorothy Mac Gregor, the F. B. L. A. has accomplished another successful year in encouraging strong, aggressive business leadership at Weymouth High. Programs have been designed to discuss problems and opportunities in employment and to groom students for their work. The social events include a christmas party, talent show, Chinese auction, and a picnic, The chapter projects are to assist the local March of Dimes and, by selling school pins, to raise funds for the presentation of an award to the outstanding senior in business education.

PLANNED ACTIVITIES, such as visits to the Boston Public Library, the Harvard library, and similar institutions had to be cancelled because of the bus strike. However, the members of the club visited the Boston Globe building and attended a Christmas party at the Hingham High School library. A trip to Quincy High was cancelled because of the snow storm in February. The Library Club met on alternate Mondays and had parties celebrating Christmas and St. Valentine's Day.

The officers of the club are Mary O'Brien, President; Jana Nista, Vice-President; Joyce Bailey, Secretary; and Lorraine Sliva, Treasurer.

Judith Palmer.

THE PURPOSE of the Spanish Club is to familiarize students of Spanish with the history, culture and customs of the Spanish people.

One of the most entertaining projects of the club was the Christmas party, with its "pinata" patterned after the Christmas celebration in Spain. In the fall Miss Gilmore gave an illustrated lecture about the places she visited in Spain. At another meeting Orlando Rajas, a student from Costa Rica, gave an enlightening description of his country. The last meeting, the outing, was a very happy occasion.

The officers of the club are Linda Ahlquist President; Mary Ellen Grant, Vice-President; Judith Palmer, Secretary; Laura Burrell, Treasurer; and Elaine Baxter, Refreshment Chairman. Mrs. Bedell and Mrs. Derry are this year's advisers.

MEMBERS of the Audio-Visual Club, popularly known in Weymouth High School as the A-V Club, run all A-V equipment used in the classrooms. When a teacher wants an educational movie, he calls the A-V Club. Besides showing films, the club members are responsible for and take care of all microphones, lighting and similar equipment.

The A-V Club member is the teacher's right-hand man. He strives to stay abreast of all modern advancements in the field and makes sure that he and his fellow members are thoroughly familiar with the equipment.

Managers of the club are Douglas Fernald and Daniel Jacques. Mr. James Steel is the adviser.

THE KEY CLUB develops strong social civic consciousness and responsibilities and trains for community leadership. Its chief project is raising money for a one hundred dollar scholarship. For this purpose the club conducts a scrap drive and a car wash. Besides the scholarship effort, the club gave a Christmas package to a needy family.

The field trips taken by the club this year included a visit to the State House, inspection of the water works, and tours of Electro Switch and Proctor and Gamble companies.

The officers of the Key Club are David Crocker, President; Donald Wentworth, Vice-President; Joseph Curro, Secretary; and Ronald Wentworth; Treasurer.

THIS YEAR saw the creation of a new club at Weymouth High School, the Amateur Radio Club, which was open to any high school student.

Under the guidance of Mr. Carpenter, the club has elected officers and made drafts for a constitution. In the future, members plan to operate a school radio station, participate in field day outings, and conduct contests.

It is the purpose of the Amateur Radio Club to provide assistance to students in securing an amateur radio operator's license and to sponsor a school station.

The officers for this year are: President, John Newton; Vice President, Arthur Patstone; Secretary, Peter Naylor; Treasurer, Peter Carlson.

THE LIGHTS dimmed; all chatter ceased. An air of expectancy fell over the auditorium, while backstage the last minute commotion continued. Lines were hastily reviewed. A stage hand was searching frantically for a missing prop. It was the opening night of the Senior Class Play. The curtain rose.

The play, TURN BACK THE CLOCK, is a hilarious comedy of the "roaring twenties," the days when our mothers and fathers were teenagers wearing raccoon coats and dancing the charleston. The talented cast presented the play which is a rollicking, happy exposé of dad's courtship with mother, in a mature, perceptive and humorous manner. The players, with the help of Mr. William Longridge's creative coaching, produced a play of superior merit.

BAND CHORUS

WEYMOUTH HIGH SCHOOL'S excellent music program includes band, orchestra, and choir.

The South Shore community has been proud of the maroon and gold clad, well-trained band, as it played not only at football games, but also in several local parades. The band participated in the festival at Dedham, in assemblies at the junior high schools, and in the high school winter and spring concerts. Outstanding players represented Weymouth at local, state, and New England school festivals.

The orchestra and choir took part in more events this year than ever before. These included the annual winter and spring concerts, the State Regional Festival at Mansfield, the New England Festival at Barre, Vermont, and the State Festival at Hyannis. For the P. T. A. the orchestra put on a Pops Concert at the Nevin School. The Music Parents' Association sponsored a party for the orchestra and choir, a trip to the Boston Pops, and a covered dish supper to conclude the year's activities for the music groups.

CHEER LEADERS

THE LIVELY, attractive cheerleaders at Weymouth High School have been a great asset to our football and basketball teams. With contagious enthusiasm they have encouraged our teams to victory and have led the student cheers for outstanding plays and players on the field.

Each cheerleader wears on her uniform one large letter of the word Weymouth. Standing in order, they are: Sue Vedoe, Bonnie Tirrell, Carol Lee Nelson, Sandra Russell, who replaced Irene Bush after her knee injury, Natalie Shober, Anne West, Jean Dunning, and Rhodena Watt.

The sub-cheerleaders are: Marylou Stewart, Lois MacLeod, Joyce Abruzzese, and Betty Ames.

With commendable civic spirit the cheerleaders volunteered to act as ushers for the "Teens Against Polio Drive" at the Weymouth Ice Skating Rink.

BY WINNING four of its meets, our cross country squad had a successful season this year. Our team defeated North Quincy twice, and also defeated Quincy and Silver Lake. It lost to a powerful Brockton team, and to Rockland and Quincy in extremely close races, by one and three points respectively.

The head coach was Mr. Oral Page. He was assisted by Mr. Malcolm Pratt and Kurt Huhtanen, manager. Graduating from the team this year are John Berg, William Brown, Jeffrey Bruce, Dana Gould, Richard McLean and Merrill Nickerson. The mainstays of next year's team will be Allan King, James Moore, John Santacroce, John Donovan, and Richard Ralph.

TRACK

THE WINTER track team, in the Metropolitan League for the first time, had an extremely poor season. Weymouth lost five league meets and defeated only Needham and North Quincy.

The outstanding senior on our team was David Crocker, high jumper. Other members of the track team graduating this year are John Berg, Stephen French, Michael Hassan, Captain; Brian Kelley, Robert Kirkland, Richard McLean, and Alan Risley.

Leonard Flathers, our junior hurdler, placed third in the state meet, and leads next year's nucleus of Arthur Bleakney, Michael Brophy, Richard Hoole,, James Moore, and Richard Moakley.

Kenneth Margeson.

THE BASKETBALL team this year got off to a slow start, but after losing the first four games, Coach Kearns' boys came through to win the next seven before losing again to powerful Somerville and Everett. From there the team went on to win five more "must" games in order to make the Tech Tourney. The season's record stands at twelve wins and six losses. Outstanding players on the team were Kenneth Margeson, Captain; Robert Daniele, and Richard McPherson. David Weinfeld and Juniors, Edward Lewis, James Balcom, Ronald DiGravio, Gary Kemp and Roger Larson, also made valuable contributions to the team's success. Coach Kearns was assisted by Mr. Mazzola and Michael Geyer, Manager.

HOCKEY

Under the competent leadership of Coach Dempsey, our hockey team won seven of its twelve games this season and finished fourth in the South Shore Hockey League. Only the fine Archbishop Williams, King Philip, and Hingham teams led them in the League.

While the entire hockey squad deserves credit for its good defense and effective team work, John Salin, John O'Neil, and Pershing Rennie will be remembered as outstanding senior players. Robert MacDonald, David Budden, Stephen Thayer, Fred Ransom, Robert Greenhalgh rounded out the graduating team. Thomas Daniele was the manager this year.

With Thomas Clinton, Richard Manson, and Henry Godin returning next year, Weymouth High has bright prospects for another successful season in 1960.

THE BASEBALL team had a busy season, playing such schools as Somerville, Chelsea, Brockton, Malden, Quincy, and North Quincy. The squad, ably coached by Leo Hayes and René Martin and managed by Murdo Dowds, fared well in all contests. Al Colarusso and Fred Ransom were the outstanding players in an excellent group of boys of whom Weymouth should be proud.

ALTHOUGH girls have no varsity sports, almost any afternoon of the year one may find an enthusiastic group, either in the gym or out on the field, eagerly competing in intramurals. Field hockey, volley ball, basketball, softball, and tennis are the sports popular in their respective seasons. All during the year Miss Arnold and Miss Levangie have taught and officiated expertly, and the girls have learned the principles of good sportsmanship and fair play, while having an enjoyable time throughout.

Senior Class Prayer

by JANET ROLLINS

Dear Lord,

As the velvet warmth of spring blankets the land, we realize that Graduation Day is near. The thrill of the future mingles with the memories of the past. Years of guidance and security are now behind us, and frightening uncertainty lies ahead. The understanding and patience of our teachers, the love and guidance of our parents and the priceless joy of laughs and sorrow we shared in friendship are the past dreams we knew.

Standing now before the open gates of tomorrow, we realize we can never turn back. Each of us has a road to travel, and whether in shining success or in dismal failure, I pray we never walk that winding road alone.

On this day of our graduation, my Lord, though we go our separate ways, may you always be near, giving us the security and love we knew when we were under the Cross of Gray.

SUCCESS

"Take an Older Sister's Advice..."

"IT'S SMART to line up job interviews well in advance of graduation. And one of the best places I know to contact is the Telephone Company. Several of us from my graduating class are working here — and every one of us loves it."

Telephone jobs are important ones. We have our own training program which you can enter without any previous job experience. The pay is good, and you'll get regular raises.

Why not come and see our employment interviewer soon . . . before you graduate. Ask the Guidance Counselor at your school to tell you when and where to apply.
